

Sharon Jones-Ryan
Consultant, Management & Organizational Ethics
The Salvation Army Ethics Centre

Sharon has been with the Ethics Centre since its inception in 1994. Her background in hospitality management has provided a strong foundation for her responsibilities as a consultant in management and organizational ethics. Sharon's current focus is a project entitled "Values at Work" which examines congruence between core values and operational culture. She also provides support to the Social Issues Committee of the Canada and Bermuda Territory.

Sharon holds a Master of Nonprofit Management degree from Regis University in Denver, Colorado and is also a member of Alpha Sigma Nu, the Jesuit honor society.

Outside of work, Sharon, her husband Bram and children Benjamin and Emma enjoy exploring the world beyond Winnipeg. One of their more memorable forays was a six month back-packing sojourn around the Mediterranean in 2004.
